

Marquita Watts is a retired educator and the current CEO of Revive Ed Consulting, where she serves as a professional development and leadership consultant. With a lifelong passion for education and service, Marquita brings decades of experience as a teacher, specialist, assistant principal, dean, and adjunct professor to her current work, empowering educators and leaders across various sectors.

She holds a Master of Science degree in Management and Administration of Educational Programs from Nova Southeastern University in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, and a Bachelor of Science degree in Mathematics from Clark Atlanta University in Atlanta, Georgia.

Marquita is also a devoted member of the Pearland West Church of Christ, where she actively supports ministries that uplift and inspire. Her involvement includes working with vacation Bible school, fashion shows, prayer breakfasts, and various community outreach efforts. Through her faith and professional expertise, she continues to encourage and uplift others in both spiritual and educational spaces.

She currently serves on the board of Angels Surviving Cancer and is the Prayer Committee Chair. Marquita remains deeply committed to continuing her ministry through service, leadership, and faith.